Notes on Contributors

Lester Embree is the William F. Dietrich Eminent Scholar in Philosophy at Florida Atlantic University and was the President of the Center for Advanced Research in Phenomenology, Inc. (1984-2005). He is editor in chief of the Encyclopedia of Phenomenology (1997) and co-editor of Phenomenological Approaches to Moral Philosophy (2002), the Handbook of Phenomenological Aesthetics (2009), and other edited volumes. He is author of Reflective Analysis: An Introduction into Phenomenological Investigation (2003), Fenomenologia Continuada: Contribuciones al Análsis Reflexivo de la Cultura (2007), and Environment Technology Justification (2009) and also a number investigative and scholarly essays in and on constitutive phenomenology. His deepest interest is in the theory of the cultural sciences, archaeology in particular. See www.lesterembree.net and contact embree@fau.edu.

Nolen Gertz is a doctoral candidate in philosophy at the New School for Social Research, currently working on a dissertation on the meaning of killing in warfare. He has edited an eBook for Inter-Disciplinary Press entitled War Fronts: Interdisciplinary Perspectives on War, Virtual War, and Human Security, has published an article entitled “Just and Unjust Killing” in the Journal of Military Ethics, and contributed a chapter on a Nietzschean interpretation of the perpetual war between the Red Sox and Yankees in the recently published The Red Sox and Philosophy (Open Court Press).

Katharine Loevy is an Instructor in Philosophy at Vanderbilt University, where she received her PhD in Philosophy in 2009. She is currently completing an MA from Vanderbilt in Art History. She works on Hegel, Levinas, feminist philosophy, and aesthetics. She has a forthcoming article in Epoche entitled "Levinas and the Binding of Isaac," and is preparing a monograph on Hegel's account of life in the Phenomenology of Spirit.

Tracey Nicholls is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Lewis University and, in 2009-2010, an Improvisation, Community, and Social Practice (ICASP) research fellow at the Centre de Recherche en Éthique de l’Université de Montréal (CRÉUM). Her fellowship project explores ways that improvisatory musical practices can help liberate and empower political communities deformed by imperialism. This extends work done in her doctoral dissertation, which explores connections between improvised music, human rights, and social justice, and considers how music-making can build more responsive political communities. In addition to aesthetics and decolonization theory, she also publishes in peace studies and critical race theory.

Claire Pagès est agrégée de philosophie, elle achève une thèse de doctorat intitulée « Négativité, sens et non-sens chez Hegel et chez Freud » sous la direction de C. Malabou à l’Université Paris X – Nanterre où elle enseigne comme ATER. Elle est l’auteure d’introductions à l’œuvre de Freud (Freud, Ellipses, Pas à Pas, 2008) et à la pensée de Hegel (Hegel, Ellipses, Apprendre à PhaeEx 5, no. 1 (spring/summer 2010): 138-139 © 2010 All Rights Reserved

L. Sebastian Purcell is a teaching fellow in the philosophy department at Boston College, where he is also a PhD candidate. His research focuses on contemporary continental philosophy, logic, and sociopolitical philosophy, especially critical race theory. Some of his other recent publications include “After Hermeneutics?” forthcoming in Symposium: Canadian Journal of Philosophy Continental Philosophy, and “Space and Narrative, or Enrique Dussel and Paul Ricoeur: The Missed Encounter” forthcoming in Philosophy Today, winner of the 2008 Best Graduate Student Essay, awarded by the Society for Ricoeur Studies. Having just finished writing his dissertation Infinite Hermeneutics, he is currently busy editing an anthology entitled “Because We’re Brown...” Latin American Philosophers on the Whiteness Question.

Rohan Quinby is a bureaucrat, writer and photographer currently living in Nashville, Tennessee. He is interested in the visual space of the modern city, as well as that of contemporary capitalist suburbanism.

Chloë Taylor is Assistant Professor of Philosophy at the University of Alberta. Her research interests include twentieth-century French philosophy, philosophy of sexuality, feminist philosophy, and animal ethics. She is the author of a monograph, The Culture of Confession from Augustine to Foucault (Routledge 2009), and is currently working on a manuscript entitled Sex Crimes and Misdemeanours: Foucault, Feminism, and the Politics of Sexual Crime.