Notes on Contributors / Notices biographiques

ELLIE ANDERSON is Visiting Assistant Professor of Philosophy at Muhlenberg College. Her work has appeared in the Journal for Speculative Philosophy, the Stanford Encyclopedia of Philosophy, and Postmodern Culture. Her current research concerns theories of sameness and difference in deconstruction, phenomenology, and feminist philosophy.

IAN ANGUS is currently Professor of Humanities at Simon Fraser University. Recent books include Identity and Justice (2008), The Undiscovered Country: Essays in Canadian Intellectual Culture (2013), and Love the Questions: University Education and Enlightenment (2009). He is currently writing a manuscript on Husserl and Marx. His web site is at https://sfu.academia.edu/IanAngus.

NINA BELMONTE is an Assistant Teaching Professor at the University of Victoria. Her research interests include History of Philosophy, Philosophy and Literature, 19th and 20th Century Continental Philosophy, and Philosophy and Film. Dr. Belmonte has published in Philosophy & Social Criticism, Praxis International, and The New Art Examiner. Recent short memoir in The Hampshire Gazette and The Amherst Bulletin, and reviews in Philosophy in Review, and InFlux. She has also translated various articles and a book, Rationalities/Historicities, by Dominique Janicaud.

SUZE BERKHOUT is a senior psychiatry resident in the Clinician Scientist Program at the University of Toronto, Department of Psychiatry. She completed a combined MD/PhD at the University of British Columbia, with a focus on contemporary feminist philosophy and the intersections of ethics and philosophy of science. Her current projects include developing an ontological analysis of first episode psychosis, applying this to issues concerning adherence to treatment, and a joint project with Dr. Ada Jaarsma (Mount Royal University) examining epistemological and existential issues surrounding placebo effects (www.feministplacebos.com).
MARCELLA D’ABBIERO is professor emeritus of Philosophy of History at the University of Roma “Sapienza.” Her current research projects focus on the links between philosophy, politics, and psychoanalysis.

RYLIE JOHNSON is a philosophy masters student at Boston College. She primarily studies French and German phenomenology. She is particularly interested in assessing the status of Hegel and Heidegger in 20th century French philosophy.

THOMAS MINGUY is a Masters student at Memorial University (Newfoundland). He graduated from Bishop’s University (Québec) in 2016 with an Honours thesis on Georges Bataille. His Masters will tackle the issue of embodiment in Spinoza’s philosophy and aims to study new conceptions of desire that do not work within the logic of lack and fulfillment proper to Hegelian and Freudian conceptions of desire.

DOROTHEA OLKOWSKI is Professor and former Chair of Philosophy at the University of Colorado, Colorado Springs, Director of Humanities, Director of the Cognitive Studies Program, and former Director of Women’s Studies. Specializing in phenomenology, contemporary continental philosophy, and feminist theory, she has been a Fellow at the University of Western Ontario, Rotman Institute of Philosophy and Science, the Australian National University in Canberra, and UC Berkeley. She is the author or editor of ten books and over 100 articles including, Postmodern Philosophy and the Scientific Turn (Indiana University Press, 2012) and The Universal (In the realm of the sensible), Columbia and Edinburgh University Presses, 2007), and (with Helen Fielding) Feminist Phenomenology Futures (Indiana University Press, 2017).

JEAN-FRANÇOIS PERRIER est doctorant en philosophie à l’Université Laval et membre du Laboratoire de philosophie continentale. Ses domaines de recherche sont la phénoménologie, la philosophie politique et l’éthique animale. Après avoir consacré un mémoire de maîtrise à la question de l’animalité chez Derrida, il poursuit actuellement ses recherches sur la phénoménologie de Marc Richir.