Notes on Contributors / Notices biographiques

JASON W. ALVIS is a Senior Research Fellow in the Institute for Philosophy, University of Vienna. He specializes in Phenomenology and Philosophy of Religion, and is the European Editor for the Journal for Cultural and Religious Theory. Most recently he has published The Inconspicuous God: Heidegger, French Phenomenology, and the Theological Turn (Indiana University Press 2018), and Phenomenology and the Post-Secular Turn: Contemporary Debates on the Return of Religion, as editor with M. Staudigl (Routledge 2018).

ESTEBAN MARÍN-ÁVILA obtained his PhD in Philosophy in Universidad Nacional Autónoma de México (UNAM). He is currently a Professor at the Institute of Philosophy of Universidad Michoacana de San Nicolás de Hidalgo (UMSNH), in Morelia, Mexico. He has been Fulbright Visiting Scholar at Pennsylvania State University, in the United States of America, and has undertaken research stays at Bergische Universität Wuppertal and at the Husserl Archive of Cologne, in Germany, as well as at Universidad Autónoma Metropolitana, Campus Azcapotzalco, in Mexico. Dr. Marín-Ávila has taught at Universidad La Salle de México, UNAM and UMSNH, and his publications include articles and book chapters on phenomenology, ethics, axiology, social ontology, social emotions and human rights.

IULIAN APOSTOLESCU is a Philosopher, Editor, Painter at Epoché Gallery (https://www.facebook.com/Epoche.Gallery). His research focuses on transcendental philosophy, phenomenology, continental philosophy, and philosophy of religion. He is editor-in-chief of the online journal Phenomenological Reviews (ISSN: 2297-7627) and General Editor, Epoché Series, Ratio and Revelatio Publishing House. He is the editor of The Subject(s) of Phenomenology: Rereading Husserl (Springer, 2020) and co-editor (with Claudia Serban) of Husserl, Kant and Transcendental Phenomenology (De Gruyter, 2020). His current projects include two edited volumes on the German philosopher Eugen Fink, a volume on Husserl and Leibniz, and a special issue on the “Varieties of the Lebenswelt”.

SUSI FERRARELLO is an Assistant Professor at Cal State University, East Bay. She has a Ph.D. in Philosophy from the Sorbonne in Paris, an M.A. in Human Rights and Political Science from the University of Bologna, and a Bachelor in Philosophy from La Sapienza University in Rome. She has held professorships at Loyola University (Chicago), University of San Francisco. Among her books, The Ethics of Lived Experience, Bloomsbury, 2018; Husserl’s Ethics and Practical Intentionality, Bloomsbury, 2015; Phenomenology of Sex, Love, and Intimacy, Routledge, 2019; Bioethics and Emotions, Routledge forthcoming.
ŠIMON GRIMMICH studied philosophy and religious studies at the universities in Prague, Tübingen and Freiburg im Breisgau (thesis: Husserl’s phenomenology of attention), and now continues with Ph.D. studies at The Department of Philosophy and Religious Studies at Charles University in Prague with a focus on meditation and attention.

IRIS HENNIGFELD is a doctoral candidate in philosophy at Leuphana University of Lueneburg (Germany). In the framework of a Goethe-Fellowship she spent two years at McGill University in Montreal (Canada). She conducted one-year of research at the Phenomenology Research Center at Southern Illinois University Carbondale (Illinois, USA). Her publications include articles on (Husserlian) phenomenology and philosophy of religion. Currently she is working on a book project concerning "Goethe's Thinking in the Light of Husserl's Phenomenology".

THOMAS KENTON HUBSCHMID is a PhD Student in Theological Studies at the University of Toronto.

MICHAEL R. KELLY (Associate Professor of Philosophy at the University of San Diego) is the author of Phenomenology and the Problem of Time (Palgrave 2016) and editor of Bergson and Phenomenology (Palgrave 2010). He is also co-editor of Michel Henry: The Affects of Thought (Bloomsbury 2012) and Early Phenomenology (Bloomsbury 2016) and author of articles and book chapters on phenomenological themes such as temporality, phenomenological theology, and envy and its sibling emotions.

MICHAEL STAUDIGL. Docent, Dr. habil., teaches philosophy at the Department of Philosophy, University of Vienna, Austria. Granted a variety of research fellowships, Michael has worked in Freiburg, Prague, Louvain-la-Neuve and New York. During 2000-2002 he was a scientific assistant at the psycho-traumatological ambulance ESRA, Vienna; during 2003-2010 a Visiting Fellow at the Institute for Human Sciences (IWM), Vienna; during 2003-2006 he held an APART-fellowship of the Austrian Academy of Sciences. From 2007 onwards he directed several research grants funded by the FWF (Austrian Science Funds), most recently the bilateral project "The Return of Religion as a Challenge for Thought" (with Branko Klun, Slovenia) and the stand-alone project "Secularism and its Discontents: Toward a Phenomenology Religious Violence."

IGNACIO QUEPONS is full-time researcher at the Philosophy Institute, Veracruz University, Mexico. He has published extensively on Husserl’s phenomenology of emotions, affective intentionality and ethics. From 2014 to 2016 he was a post-doctoral research fellow and instructor at the Philosophy Department, Seattle University. Currently, he is working on a phenomenology of vulnerability and hostile environments.